Divorce Among Baby Boomers Is On The Rise & It’s Complicated

WHAT:

Baby Boomers are divorcing at a surprising rate, and that will have huge implications for their lives in retirement. The number of divorces among people 50 or older doubled from 1990 to 2010. And in that year, one in four U.S. divorces was in that age group. And while the experts say it's a product of, among other things, longer life spans, Boomer divorce will affect retirement lifestyles, estate plans and assets. That pool of money that was going to fund retirement for a couple will now be split in half, and must now fund retirement for two people living separately.
